The Georgia Troubles.

Beast Butler & Co. are trying to induce the President to interfere with affairs in Georgia. They propose that when a Union man is murdered there, the President shall inform the neighborhood that, if the murderer is not given up in so many days, the military will take possession of the infected district and do just what military law chooses to do therein. This is proposed in Georgia, which is a reconstructed State—a State which has been brought back into the Union in accordance with the requirements of the act of the North, without regard to law, wisdom or justice.

It is hard to have to stand by and see such measures urged in this age and in this country. No doubt murders have been committed in Georgia—in what States are they not committed? Even in Massachusetts is not free from such crimes, and we don't remember of any case in Georgia to equal the cutting up of a victim in Boston by Dr. Webster. True, a Yankee in Georgia not long since attempted to murder his colored mistress and killed himself because he could not kill her. And Dr. Adams was recently killed there for many and terrible crimes. It may be that as good causes were at the bottom of other homicides in that region.

But even if there were more murders there than we hear of, and there were no causes for any of them, except that the victims were Yankees, would that be any reason for the President interfering in matters there? If the Yankees don't like being killed there, and can't get used to it, let them stay away. Better stay away and not be killed at all, than go there and get killed, and make so much fuss about it. The only pretext the President could have for sending troops there would be a call from the Governor, upon the statement that he needed Federal help to enforce the laws. But Governor Bullock has made no call for troops, and the President had better attend to his own business. Georgia is a reconstructed State, and, according to the boasts of the Radicals, nothing but reconstruction would ever be wanted there to make all things go on well. It seems now that their work of reconstruction is doing very badly from the fact that they want to send Federal troops there when there is no official call for them. Such reconstruction don't look well at all, and if it don't work without the killing of so many Yankees, then the Yankees had better leave there and stay away for the good name of their own reconstruction policy.

It might be well enough for Georgia, Mississippi and Texas to make a note of these things while they are approaching the goal of reconstruction. Affairs in Georgia may teach them, if they teach anything, that reconstruction is not to be the end of the end of woes. In fact, it looks very much like the beginning, instead of the end of woes. The day is far distant when the reconstructed States will not be used, just as the Radicals of the North want them to be used, in controlling the policy of the country. They have been in or out of the Union, as the Radicals wanted them, and their reconstruction will be used in a similar way for party purposes.

The Gift of Mr. Corcoran.

When the rebellion broke out Mr. Corcoran, the Washington banker, was deemed a rebel and his property, intended as a national charity, was seized and used by the government without his will. No rent was paid him for the property taken, and he was given to understand that the less he said about collecting rents the better. Now, however, that the rebellion is over, and the property has been restored to the rightful owner, what has Mr. Corcoran done with it? He has simply carried out the design which the seizure for years prevented. He has given the splendid palace he reared near the Treasury building to trustees for a gallery of art, and added thereto all the rents due from the government, besides contributing a large stock of works of art and money to buy more—the whole amounting in value to $1,000,000. Now, where is there to be found a Union shrieker during the war who denounced and oppressed Corcoran who has done a noble act to compare with this? Who would not rather be such a rebel as Corcoran than such a Union shrieker as Judge Advocate General Holt? Which is the most eloquent for the Union, the gift of Corcoran for the art gallery or the speech of Sumner for the Alabama claims?

GRANT has turned more men out of office than did any President who preceded him. He has proscribed hundreds of soldiers who served their country as faithfully as he did. The secret of this is revealed by a Washington letter: "And here let me say that malice toward Andrew Johnson will be found a key to unlock many of the mysteries of the administration. Next to the influence and superior will and intellect of Boutwell, as a controlling force, comes in as a cause of Grant's action, an insane, morbid hatred of Andrew Johnson. Now, you may have what opinion you please of the letter as a man or a statesman, but it is palpable that an administration, like an individual, which frames its daily walk on principles of revenge, is pretty sure to blunder."

The following gentlemen compose the Board of Visitors appointed to attend the annual examination of the West Point Military Academy, which takes place on the 1st of June: Gen. W. Hunter, Gen. Gresham and Gen. John Eaton, of Tennessee; Hon. B. T. Loan, of Missouri; Judge C. H. Warren, of Massachusetts; Dr. M. B. Anderson, President of the Rochester University, New York; Rev. R. L. Stanton, D. D., President of the Miami University, Ohio.

A RADICAL CONGRESS believed that Mr. Harvey, American Minister to Portugal, was not "loyal" about the time the war closed, and refused to allow his salary to be paid him. It seems, though, that the amount—$20,000—was paid nevertheless. Mr. Seward, it seems, paid it out of the secret service fund in 1866.

Busted.

The Hon. Richard Busted, United States District Judge for the District of Alabama, is now a little apprehensive that he will go up the spout. Charged with official corruption and incompetency, he made a desperate effort to have the charges investigated at Washington, where he hoped the witnesses would be scarce; he declared that he was afraid to go back to Alabama; the Ku-Klux were lying in wait for him, with the rope and saw apple-tree all ready. And believing that he had fully impressed these facts upon the Congressional committee appointed to investigate his case, he quietly returned to Alabama and opened one of his courts there. His surprise and disgust were great when he found that the committee, with no fear of the Ku-Klux before their eyes, had followed him into the lion's den, there to investigate the recalcitrances of the unjust Judge, with all the witnesses at hand.

When Busted first began his official career in Alabama, he had not been fully induced into the mysteries of Radical reconstruction, and very naturally supposed that the Southern people would have something to say in the management of their political affairs, and having an earnest desire to do the State some service in the United States Senate, he at once assumed a strongly conservative attitude, and for some time was as thick as thieves with some prominent "rebels" as would smoke cigars, drink his whiskey and invite him to their houses. But it leaked out one fine day that the carpet-baggers and scoundrels would be invested, by Congressional enactment, with the power to control public affairs, and at once the supply Busted these a double somersault and came down flat-footed in the midst of the white and black riffraff who constituted the "loyal" inhabitants of the land and of all places of honor and profit. These did not receive him very cordially, however, and for a year or two he was upon the fence, nobody knowing whether he was really "pig or puppy," as he was always a Radical when with the Radicals and a Conservative when with the Conservatives. Nor was his true position clearly defined until during the Presidential campaign of last year, when, after making a decidedly Democratic speech to the Democrats of South Alabama, he suddenly turned up in a bitter Radical speech at Brooklyn, N. Y., in which he abused and vilified the Southern people as only an unprincipled adventurer and ingrain blackguard can or could or would. He was a traitor to both parties, and now has no friends in either. His corruption in office is notorious wherever he has essayed to discharge the functions of the office which to assume was to disgrace. His ignorance of law and his utter incapacity for the position he holds are not less notorious. When the committee shall have finished the investigation of the charges alleged against him, there is little or no doubt that he will be duly convicted and sent back to earn a living in the Police Courts of New York, where he so long flourished as a professional chyster.

New Rule of Evidence.

The New York courts are now at work under the new rule of evidence established by the late Legislature of that State. This rule allows parties interested in the issue to become witnesses, so that both plaintiffs and defendants appear upon the stand. As far as they have gone the courts seem to think well of the new rule; and in some instances it has been contended that justice has been arrived at between the litigants which would not have been reached in the old way. We don't see but the new rule should work well in all cases. If the witness be interested in the issue, his credulity goes to the jury and there are weighed the reasons for and against the truth of what is testified. It may be well enough for our Legislature, when it next meets, to take the matter into consideration, and provide for the same kind of testimony in our State. The rule already prevails in the Federal courts and works well there. There is no reason why it should not work well in the State courts, while there are many reasons why it may work well.

A WASHINGTON special to the New York Times says Secretary Boutwell proposes to have the returns of the sales of confiscated property in the Southern States overhauled, as it is rumored that some of the United States officials have neglected to pay the receipts from sales into the treasury. This is believed to be the case, particularly in Virginia, and it may possibly appear that some of the United States officials have purchased confiscated property sold under their authority at low prices, and then failed to account for the scanty proceeds.

The Massachusetts legislature has passed a bill authorizing any married woman to be an executrix, administratrix, guardian or trustee—positions from which married women have been heretofore debarred by the laws of the State, though unmarried women have been eligible. This new law will place married and unmarried women on an equality in regard to the control of property, and the Springfield Republican thinks the next step will be to give women equal property rights with men.

The following gentlemen compose the Board of Visitors appointed to attend the annual examination of the West Point Military Academy, which takes place on the 1st of June: Gen. W. Hunter, Gen. Gresham and Gen. John Eaton, of Tennessee; Hon. B. T. Loan, of Missouri; Judge C. H. Warren, of Massachusetts; Dr. M. B. Anderson, President of the Rochester University, New York; Rev. R. L. Stanton, D. D., President of the Miami University, Ohio.

A RADICAL CONGRESS believed that Mr. Harvey, American Minister to Portugal, was not "loyal" about the time the war closed, and refused to allow his salary to be paid him. It seems, though, that the amount—$20,000—was paid nevertheless. Mr. Seward, it seems, paid it out of the secret service fund in 1866.

It is stated that a turnpike road is now in course of construction between Jaffa, the old Joppa, on the sea coast, and Jerusalem, a distance of thirty-six miles. The engineering is very rude, but part of the road is already finished, over which is running an omnibus, driven by a New England stage driver, one of the survivors of the American colony at Jaffa. The Turkish Government has collected $250,000 to pay for the road, and also compensates the inhabitants to work upon it; very low rates of wages. Toll-gates have already been established. Jaffa is only accessible in a calm, but with this disadvantage, its exports of cotton, fruit, oil and sesame seeds amount to $2,000,000 per annum.

An evidence of the progress made in England by the Ritualistic and Roman Catholic sentiment, a correspondent has found in the fact that on Thursday, the day known in the ecclesiastical calendar as Ascension Day, a large number of London shops and warehouses were closed, a thing which has not been known in England for the last three centuries. In a number of the churches of the Establishment religious services were held during the whole day.

Here is something for the doctors: In a homicide case in Philadelphia, it came out that the blows were given on the 6th of March, and death did not occur until the 31st and yet the post mortem developed the fact that the fracture, which commenced at the back of the head, extended from thence on both sides until it nearly met in front, and consequently the man lived with nearly the whole of the top of the skull separated from the other portion.

The Jackson (Michigan) Citizen says: "Mrs. Anna Gregory died in Pulaski township, in that county, a few days since, at the residence of her son, Mr. Russell Gregory. The deceased lady's age was one hundred and eleven years and eight months. This venerable woman was born in Dutchess county, New York, in the year 1757. Her maiden name was Anna Knickerbocker."

It is said that the horses and carriage now used by Mr. Seward, and occasionally seen in the streets of Auburn, were the property of Abraham Lincoln during his administration, and that Mr. Lincoln's coachman still occupies the driver's seat.

A LETTER from Monaco says the "bank" at that place has suffered severely of late. Scarcely had the Russian Princess Suvaroff carried off the sum of 447,000 francs, when a Dutch gambler won, in two days, 120,000 francs.

A LETTER from London tells us that when the Prince and Princess of Wales arrived at the Piræus, they were received by the King of Greece, who was accompanied by his A. D. C., Lieut. Col. Pappadantonopolos.

JOHN WHITNEY, who is believed by many to have been concerned in making away with Morgan, the Masonic apostate, died recently in Chicago.

Six thousand Scandinavian immigrants arrived at Chicago last week.

A FORTUNE IN THE ROUGH.

A $300,000 Diamond.
From the Rock Island Argus, 24th.
A few days ago a gentleman came up the river on the steamer New Boston, who privately exhibited to the officers of that packet a diamond in the rough, which, in its unpolished state, is supposed to be worth somewhere in the vicinity of $300,000. It is supposed to be the second or third diamond in size in the world. It is about the size of a walnut, is perfectly transparent, and has the power of magnifying to the same extent as a first quality glass. The lucky possessor found it at his home in the gold mining districts of Nova Scotia. It was one of two small ones, one of which he sold for $12,000 in its rough state. To convince the officers of the boat, he produced files of Nova Scotia papers containing accounts of the finding of the diamond, minute descriptions of the same, descriptions of the finder, and other evidence, and he stated that he had been questioned. He also showed letters from prominent New York jewelers, who had examined the prize, one of which was from the house of Ball, Black & Co. He is going to Iowa to see about landed investments, with a view of some day locating there. He proposes to have the whole United States and sell it to some crowned head if possible.

A Very Grand Army.

From the Washington Cor. New York World.
A political organization here known as the Grand Army of the Republic, and composed of peddling sets of local strikers, have coolly requested the Commissioner of Patents, the Hon. S. H. Fisher, to remove forty-eight clerks, specified on a black list which they have prepared. The fact that Mr. Fisher is for the time accidentally identified with this set of dykes to them next Saturday, on the occasion of their putting flowers on the graves of some Union soldiers, gives a seeming warrant for their impertinence, which should not be received. The Commissioner has already announced to the examiners, en masse, that he will make no removals for political causes, and he has kept his word. Those who have been removed have been obnoxious by reason of habits or neglect of duty. The Commissioner only stipulates that work be done promptly, and that no politics of any kind be introduced in discussion. This same body of strikers have gratuitously gone out of their way to resolve that they won't put flowers on graves of Southern soldiers buried here. No such desecration was asked or expected of them, and these non-combatants, who have never shed a drop of blood since they were born, have showed their soldierly courage by wantonly kicking at corpses. Even President Grant has ignored this scallawag set in dispensing the district offices.

"Protection."

From the N. Y. World, 25th.
One of the best illustrations of the practical operation of the theories of the protectionists, is seen in the effect which the present tariff has upon the shoe trade. A few years ago the Lynn manufacturers were able to compete in other countries in the shoe trade for Cuba, Mexico and South America; but, under the practical operation of the protection theories, the cost of every article which enters into the manufacture of shoes has increased to such an extent that they cannot be made at prices at which they can be exported. The result is, that our shoe manufacturers have almost entirely lost the foreign trade in that article, and that the Lynn factories are obliged to reduce the price of their shoes. Such are some of the blessings of protection which the Tribune so zealously advocates.

Insect Powder.

HOW TO TELL THE GENUINE ARTICLE.
Prof. E. LYON, while traveling in Asia, discovered a flower, when powdered, is sure death to every kind of insect, from the common house fly to the most terrible locust. He protected his discovery by letters patent, government medals, &c., put his signature upon every flask of the article, and named it LYON'S MAGNOLIA INSECT POWDER. He imparted his secret to no one but his successor.

Purchasers of Insect Powder—and it is used in almost every house—must see to it that they are not deceived by worthless imitations and counterfeits. The signature of E. Lyon is the purchaser's guarantee. Look sharp for it, and buy no Insect Powder that does not bear it. It may be had of Druggists and Family Stores, at 26 cents per flask. A Household Elixir Adapted to all Climates.

It would be a happy thing for the world if all the exultants at present used in the practice of medicine, could be swept out of existence, and HOSSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS substituted in their place. There is a probability, too, that this desirable substitution may one day be accomplished. Certain it is, that the GREAT VEGETABLE TONIC is gradually displacing them, and that the confidence of the people in its sanitary and saving properties, increases with every passing year. "Figures that cannot lie," show this to be the fact. No medicinal preparation enjoys the like popularity among all classes and conditions of the human race. As an antidote to indigestion, a cure for intermittent and remittent fevers, a gentle cathartic, a specific for flatulency and sour stomach, a gentle diuretic, a nerve, a blood purifier, a specific for sick headache, a mild anodyne, and, above all, as a PROTECTOR AGAINST FEVERS, it is unquestionably the STANDARD REMEDY of the whole United States. In the towns and cities it is literally a HOUSEHOLD STAPLE. Mothers believe in it. They find it a "present help in time of trouble," a safe and pleasant remedy for the various ailments to which their sex is exclusively subject. Men believe in it. It is a reliable, instant cure for all ailments of the stomach and bowels, and for all ailments of the body and the mind, and tones both without exciting either.
